BEFORE & AFTER

Above: A pickup crosses the Crooked Creek Bridge on Thursday on West Street in downtown Madison. The creek channel, which had previously become overgrown with trees and brush, was cited as a factor in flash flooding that impacted dozens of homes and businesses last year but a $25,000 flood mitigation project has since cleared the channel to allow storm runoff a more direct and clear path to the Ohio River with less potential of flooding nearby neighborhoods.

MSB voices concern over legislative agenda

BY BOB DEMAREE

Board members and Superintendent Jeffrey Studebaker voiced their concerns that legislation currently before the Indiana General Assembly is an attack on public education at Wednesday's Madison School Board meeting.

Studebaker said the set of bills for consideration by lawmakers are "a direct assault on public education, and we need to stand up now. We need to do something to make our voices heard before they enact a lot of this legislation."

In particular, Studebaker cited legislation that would require school board candidates, now a non-partisan election, to claim a political party affiliation.

"That's totally inappropriate," Studebaker said "This is supposed to be an apolitical organization and this is nothing but another attempt by the legislature to politicize the situation and control Indiana school boards."

Board member Larry Henry said the legislature is "doing things that I believe are going to cause big problems."

"There's a lot going on in the statehouse in regards to education policy, so if our community

Hollingsworth not seeking reelection in 9th District

BY BOB DEMAREE

Jefferson County is back in the 9th US Congressional District after a decade in the 6th District, and it looks like that race will include some new faces for the May primary.

On Wednesday, current 9th District US Rep. Trey Hollingsworth announced that he will not seek reelection, stating that he will keep his pledge to limit his terms in office.

On Thursday, District 47 State Senator Erin Houchin announced her intentions to seek the 9th District seat along with Bill J. Thomas.

"Now is the time for proven conservative leadership to re-take the House of Representatives, and our country, and I look forward to joining the fight," said Houchin, who lives in Salem.

Houchin ran unsuccessfully in the 2016 9th District Republican primary, losing to Hollingsworth. Thomas has also filed as a Republican.

Several new filings have also taken place for county-wide offices including Gary Copeland for Commissioner, Upper District; Ray Black Jr. for County Council, District 3; and Amanda Creech for County Assessor.

County reports 123rd COVID-19 death

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Madison schools have extended their switch from classroom instruction to virtual learning to include all of next week at both Madison Junior High School and Madison Consolidated High School.

Due to COVID-19 related issues among staff and students, and staffing issues unrelated to COVID, the school corporation originally decided to put the junior high on virtual learning Thursday through Monday. However, on Friday afternoon the schools start notifying parents by phone that both the junior high and high school will be virtual all of next week.

Meanwhile, Jefferson County's COVID-19 death toll continues to climb with one new death reported Thursday, bringing the county's overall total to 123.

While there were no new deaths in other area counties, high numbers of positive cases are being reported. In Jefferson County, there were 55 new positive cases while Switzerland County had 22, Trimble County had 27 and Carroll County had 37 new infections.

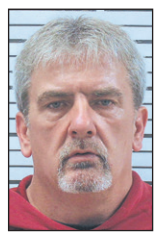
Unrelated pornography, drug cases lead to 3 arrests

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Acting on a tip from the Internet Crimes Against Children task force (ICAC), Madison Police arrested a local man Thursday on child pornography charges in downtown Madison.



Michael Dean Woods

Beebe Anthony Curtis Smoke Brooks

Charles Benjamin Hammon

MPD Detectives and Officers served a search warrant in the 400 block of East Second Street in an investigation into alleged child pornography as a result of an online cybertip from the ICAC. Police executed multiple search warrants on the residence and Charles Benjamin Hammon, 34, Madison, has been charged with Possession of Child Pornography, a Level 6 felony, and Possession of Drug Paraphernalia, a Class C misdemeanor.

The investigation is ongoing and digital storage devices seized during the search are being submitted to the state forensics lab for investigation.

Detective Ricky Harris led the investigation with assistance by Chief John Wallace, Detective Sgt. Kyle Cutshaw, Captain Season Jackson and Patrolmen Josh Nolan, Curtis Shelpman and Graham Heffelfinger.

Hammon was lodged in the Jefferson County Jail without bond.

Elsewhere, a Jefferson County man was arrested Tuesday on felony drug, resisting arrest and intimidation charges after he alleged physically resisted a Madison Police officer who was serving an arrest warrant.

While following up on outstanding warrants, Madison Police Patrolman Cameron Blankenship located Beebe Anthony Curtis Smoke Brooks, 23, Dupont, in the 1900 block of Cragmont Street on Tuesday. When Blankenship attempted to make the arrest, Brooks unsuccessfully attempted to evade and was taken into custody after physically resisting the officer.

During a subsequent search of Brooks, officers recovered methamphetamine, scheduled drugs and paraphernalia. Brooks, who was wanted on probation violation warrants, was originally charged with Intimidation With a Deadly Weapon, a Level 5 felony; Possession of Methamphetamine, a Level 6 felony; Possession of Marijuana, a Class B misdemeanor; and Possession of Paraphernalia, a Class C misdemeanor.

The additional charges filed against Brooks on Tuesday include Possession of Methamphetamine and Resisting Law Enforcement, both Level 5 felonies; Possession of a Scheduled Drug and Obstruction of Justice, both Level 6 felonies; and Possession of Paraphernalia, a Class C misdemeanor.

Brooks was lodged in the Jefferson County Jail on a $5,500 full cash bond.

Blankenship was assisted by MPD Officers Nichole Midgett and Trent Smith.

On Thursday, a Madison man was arrested on a warrant for drug trafficking after a several-month-long investigation by Madison Police.

Michael Dean Woods, 54, Madison, was arrested on a warrant for Dealing Methamphetamine, a Level 4 felony, based on an investigation led by MPD Detectives Kyle Cutshaw and Ricky Harris. The detectives sought and received the arrest warrant after Madison Police allegedly made several controlled methamphetamine buys from Woods over the past several months.

Woods was lodged in the Jefferson County Jail on a $10,000 cash bond.

and voters could at least look at what those policies are, get in touch with your representative to express your opinions and thoughts on those," Board member Lori Slygh said. " I know our teachers and students would greatly appreciate it."

House Bill 1182 would add political party identifiers to currently nonpartisan school board elections. House Bill 1134 and Senate Bill 167 would limit topics discussed in the classroom and require teachers to post curriculum materials and allow parental input.

Studebaker noted that by posting daily lesson plans online, if the parents don't like it "they can call in and say my kid is not participating in your class today. I need an alternative assignment. There's just some cumbersome stuff" in the proposed legislation, he said.

In other business, election of officers was held during the board's statutory meeting for the new year. David Storie was elected as the new board president replacing Jodi Yancey who was elected vice president. Slygh was elected secretary.

Storie noted it's been one year since he and Jay Roney began serving on the board and he looks forward to working with board members.

"When I was running for this, I was having people come and say to me, 'Are you crazy?' but I can honestly tell you it's been great," Storie said. "This is a great team that we have. With me stepping into the presidency I have no concerns because each one of these guys are fantastic. When we're working for you guys, we're really trying hard."

Storie added that the potential negatives that he heard while campaigning proved unfounded. "I've seen really positive things and we're doing everything we can to make it the best that we can," he said.

School board committee assignments were also made for 2022 with Yancey and Henry on the policy committee; Storie and Yancey on the negotiations committee; Slygh on the educational foundation; Henry the Indiana State School Board association liaison; Roney and Slygh named to the wellness committee; and Henry and Storie assigned to the facilities committee. A gift wasted?

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: Without trying to sound arrogant, I am smarter than the average bear. Not quite a genius but certainly up there. I won all kinds of academic awards in school and hold three degrees.

But my problem is this: I am now 48, the mother of two children with special needs. I have spent most of my life being their caregiver (for which I do not blame them at all because they needed help and I'm their mother) and a full-time homemaker. I feel disappointed somehow, as though I wasted my talent. I don't know how to describe it. I feel as though I was given this talent and I didn't use it to the fullest.

Do I have a responsibility to use my gifts? Did I let myself and/or others down because I didn't really? Do I need to set a goal for myself, and if so, what? — Really Not Conceited

Dear Really Not Conceited: No, you haven't let anyone down. You've raised two kids and made a loving home. So please stop beating yourself up for not having pursued all of your dreams yet. You are only 48 years young. There is still plenty of time. Many famous writers and artists got started after 40 — though this isn't about chasing after fame. It's about honoring the part of yourself that wants to shine more light onto the world. I can't tell you what your specific goal should be, as I don't know what's in your heart. But you should make it a priority to carve time out of your day for creativity, by journaling, drawing, taking a class — doing anything that nurtures the part of yourself that you feel heretofore has been underfed. You won't be satisfied until you do.

Dear Annie: I'd never had trouble with my eyesight until recently. My job involves staring at a computer screen for eight hours a day. That's a lot of blue light! My distance vision is still great, but my close-up vision is suffering. Would wearing prescription lenses while I work on the computer help? I want to be proactive about this so that I can prevent further loss of eyesight. — Blindsided by Blue

Dear Blindsided by Blue: You're wise to be vigilant about your vision. For many of us, good eyesight was one of those things we didn't know that we had until it was gone. First and foremost, you should see an optometrist. Generally, computer use causes myopia, or nearsightedness, so it's significant that you're experiencing farsightedness.

Aside from seeing an eye doctor, here are some tips: When you're working, be sure to look away from your monitor and at something in the distance for about 20 seconds and blink rapidly. Do this preferably every 10 minutes but at least every 20 minutes. There are web browser plug-ins that will remind you to take these breaks.

Keep your monitor at least 20 inches from your face.

Adjust the monitor brightness so it's close to the brightness of your surroundings.

Adjust the color temperature of your monitor so that it's warmer-toned, which will cause less strain.

Continue to pay attention to any changes in your vision. Your peepers are precious.

In-laws don't show affection

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My relationship with my in-laws is a bit strange. I have three children, and my husband's parents have never shown love or that they care for them, or for my husband and me, for that matter. It breaks my heart that my children do not have a relationship with them, as they are their only grandparents.

When I visit their home, they do not have pictures of my children. They only have pictures of my father-in-law's grandchildren from his daughter with a previous marriage.

I've been married to my husband for more than a decade, and I have never felt accepted by them or even loved. They have not shown any affection toward us or my children. Every time we talk on the phone, it is always awkward, and they never speak to my children the way grandparents should. I would like to cut ties with them and keep them out of our lives. What should I do? — Broken Heart

Dear Broken Heart: Cutting ties with them seems a bit extreme. Have you asked yourself if you have accepted and loved them? Have you shown affection toward them? I am not blaming you for the relationship but simply suggesting that you look at yourself and how you have treated them.

Why not give them a picture in a nice frame of their grandchildren? Maybe they don't know how to print out the photos and your father-in-law's daughter gave them the photo. Send them love and acceptance if that is what you would like from them. If they still cannot return it, just accept that it is their loss and they are missing out on all the love and joy that grandchildren can give.

Dear Annie: I read Ann Landers and "Dear Abby" when I was a kid and have continued reading all the Anns and Annies since. (Does this date me, or what?!)

The recent letter from "Not So Black and White" — as many others have over the years — left me in tears. This lady's concern was about her hateful, racist mother-in-law and her relationship with her 7-year-old stepdaughter.

As I was folding up the newspaper to toss, I spontaneously sent up a prayer for this family, asking God to soften this woman's heart so that healing can take place in the family. Then it occurred to me that I should do that every time I read your column.

I haven't made New Year's resolutions in decades, until this year.

I challenge all of your readers to send up prayers of healing as they read your column. Costs you nothing but your time.

Happy New Year, and God Bless. — Sending Warm Thoughts

Dear Sending Warm Thoughts: Thank you for your kind words. Your intention to send love and good thoughts to people struggling is greatly appreciated by me and more readers than you know.

SW School Board OKs pay hikes for non-certified staff, administrators

BY BOB DEMAREE

Southwestern School Board approved salary increases for non-certified staff and administrators at its meeting on Monday.

"These were the only people who have not been given a salary increase and we were waiting until we had settled with the teachers" which was approved in November. "That's why this is being brought up now," said Laura Boldery, the school corporation's treasurer.

Superintendent Jeffrey Bates said the increase for non-certified staff is 11%, all of which is being given in the 2021-2022 school year. Administrators will receive an 8% increase for 2021-2022 and an 8% increase for 2022-2023.

"What we have tried to do with these increases, just as we have done with our teacher salary increases, is make our pay scale more in line with other corporations in our area and of similar size," said Bates. "Our non-certified and administrators pay have been very low, compared to other corporations so we have now brought our pay scale in the ballpark of those around us. We now offer competitive wages across the board for all of our employees — teachers, non-certified staff and administrators."

With the meeting being the school board's first of 2022, the members also elected officers for 2022 with Rick Stockdale as board president and John Jones vice president — positions they both held in 2021 — while Jonathon Simpson was elected secretary to replace Lacie Deputy, who had served in that position in 2021.

Appointments were also made to other boards with Stockdale and Simpson serving on the policy committee, Misty Jacobs and Jones on the negotiation committee, Stockdale and Simpson on the athletic council, and Deputy and Jones on the technology committee. Additionally, Bates was named to serve as Madison Area Special Services representative as well as on the boards for Southeastern Career Center and Wilson Education Center.

The board also approved retaining Susan Traynor Chastain as attorney. Chastain is with the Indianapolis firm of Lewis and Kappes, which specializes in school law, and 2022 will be her 11th year working with Southwestern schools, primarily assisting with contract negotiations.

The board approved re-appointing Laura Boldery as corporation treasurer, Melissa May as deputy treasurer and Penny Mahoney as assistant treasurer.

In the board's finance meeting, German American Bank was again established as the school corporation's depository, which it has been since 2002. Boldery noted that receipts from interest rates have declined the past two years from $38,940.40 in 2019 to $4,911.23 last year. She said interest rates are generally down right now. "We hope it will get better but we don't know."

The board also approved a resolution that following the US Census no changes were needed in the Southwestern School Board districts.

In the public comments segment of the meeting, John Phillips expressed concerned about Social Emotional Learning, and the appropriateness of questions students might be asked from Panorama surveys. Board members Simpson and Deputy said they have seen the questions, and did not find any they deem inappropriate. Additionally, assistant superintendent Jason Watson said school officials have the ability to modify or eliminate any questions they feel might be inappropriate, and those type of questions would not be allowed.

Is your retirement income based on guarantees or assumptions?

"Smart planning should include some of your important retirement accounts are guaranteed." Steve Dybwad

Layin It On The Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

When planning retirement, do you depend on projections based on future conditions, or do you plan your retirement based on guarantees? The answer may surprise you; both can be the correct answer. It all depends on your situation and what "time" period you are focusing on retirement.

Let's start with a projection or estimate of future value planning. If you base your future retirement income solely on US (or foreign) stocks, the volatility factor must be included. How will your chosen stocks perform over some time, and how easily can they convert to a retirement account to fund your desired income level? S0 much about a stock's performance can depend on outside influences such as the overall world economy, the valuation of the dollar, inflation or deflation, and a third parties (analysis) view of your stock's profit results. A group of top stock strategists can predict anything from a single-digit loss to a double-digit gain.

How do you plan for your future retirement income?

Whom do you trust?

How do you estimate future market values?

Experimenting with discretionary funds is one thing, but significant retirement funds could be a poor choice. Once again, it all depends on your situation.

Many people lose sight of the actual goal of retirement planning, which in its most basic form is to make your retirement income lasts as long as we do. This seems like a relatively straightforward objective, so why do so many people start with a retirement income strategy that leaves so much to chance? Let's consider the choices again by category; one is an estimate, and the other is a guarantee. Depending on your asset values and your desired lifestyle, there can be room for both types of planning. The key is that essential expenses must be covered first and fully funded by lifetime income sources.

You'll enjoy some significant advantages if your lifetime sources of income are sufficient to fund essential lifestyle expenses. The question and problem are the same: How do you do it? First on the list is to avoid market volatility risk and accept a reasonable rate of return.

New studies show if given a choice, most people would choose safe, secure income over yields. When the funds have to be there, and the income is essential, safety becomes the first decision. Having this sort of income planning eliminates the possibility of outliving your source of income, or what is called longevity risk. Knowing that your necessary expenses are covered with a guaranteed source of income is a great comfort and sense of freedom to enjoy your retirement years, no matter how long you live.

Given all the uncertainties, the unpredictable outcomes, and the unending list of "what-ifs" facing investors, it's no surprise that drawing an accurate road map to where financial markets are headed is no easy task. Even for the Wall Street players who admit there are too many variables that are beyond our capabilities to absorb and forecast. That is precisely why it's a top priority for those retired or about to retire to understand the risk they face without having put into place a guaranteed retirement income solution to alleviate the risk of running out of money.

Let's take a look at the state of America's retirement system. A generation ago, pension plans were offered to more than four out of five private-sector workers—today, it's fewer than one in three. An employee has mainly replaced pensions paid plans like 401(k)s, 403(b)s, or 457s. Expenses built into many of these plans make it difficult to earn the needed money to fund basic retirement needs. The shortcomings of this approach are evident in its lack of guarantees—an essential factor when you consider the current historical level of market volatility. Plus, new insight into how fees are charged and the actual cost of owning these plans have come under regulatory scrutiny.

Thankfully, solutions exist that can potentially increase your income and generate a lifetime pension payout to both spouses with the benefits of protection and guarantees.

We use the only financial instrument to provide a guaranteed income that you cannot outlive and maintain control of your money with upside potential and no downside risk. How can this be accomplished?

Naturally, by handing the risk of managing your significant retirement funds to a risk bearer. An insurance company is a risk bearer.

Since the Presbyterian Church first invented annuities nearly 300 years ago, annuities have been the cornerstone of millions of retirees' significant retirement income. With the evolution of new and dynamic products, a guaranteed income with annual crediting in the 4-7% range is fully available.

Removing risk from retirement planning by allowing an insurance company to manage your retirement accounts can provide you with a stress-free and secure future.

Girls sports pioneer Eisenhardt dies at 96

BY BOB DEMAREE

There's no telling the number of lives impacted in the long coaching and teaching career of Mary Louise Eisenhardt, who died Thursday at age 96.

"She is an icon in this town, a legend and a pioneer," said Harold Lakeman, former Madison Parks Director and longtime Madison Cub basketball historian.

For years, Eisenhardt engaged with a significant number of youth throughout the community — whether it was through coaching, being a physical education teacher or as a swim instructor.

Eisenhardt was head girls basketball when the Madison Lady Cubs advanced to the semistate in 1978, only to lose in the championship game to Jac-Cen-Del, who was coached by Mary Jo McClelland, one of Eisenhardt's former students.

She played a significant role in the history of girls athletics at Madison. In the 1950s, after she began teaching at Madison High School, she was named to the state Girls Athletic Association board.

When Title IX was passed, it was Eisenhardt who was tasked with leading Madison's girls sports programs under the new sanctioning of the Indiana High School Athletic Association.

Eisenhardt also was a significant part of the early history of Crystal Beach, constructed in 1938, when she began teaching swimming lessons there each summer beginning in the mid-1950s.

"Crystal Beach was practically the only pool around in those days," said Lakeman. "We had kids from Scottsburg come in, across the river on buses, and the kids from Hanover came in. They came in from everywhere, and she taught hundreds and hundreds of kids every morning."

File photo

And for years, she was a constant presence at boys basketball games as the cheerblock sponsor back in the days when the girls were dressed so the cheerblock spelled out a big "M."

Eisenhardt, a 1943 graduate of Madison High School, graduated from Hanover College in 1947, then taught at New Albany Junior High School for five years and one year at Salem High School before coming home to Madison, where she taught from 1954 until her retirement in 1991.

As a leader in the GAA, Eisenhardt was involved with all girls sports — everything from basketball, volleyball, softball, track and even archery and badminton.

"There were a lot of areas that she touched, and did. She's almost a classic example of a PE (physical education) person coming through that era that did everything. Anything that comes along that does anything with girls," said Cheryl Hooton, who began teaching at Madison Junior High School in 1973, just after Title IX was enacted that increased athletic opportunities for women.

Because Hooton taught at the junior high, she was not in the same building as Eisenhardt during the school day, but she saw her often in those early years when the school's girls team began competing against other schools.

"She was in the forefront of coaching girls in our community and she was in places where she had to fight those battles," said Hooton, noting that she cherished "learning patience" from Eisenhardt. "That was a big lesson for me."

Volleyball was the first girls sports sanctioned for an IHSAA tournament and Eisenhardt remained the Lady Cubs' coach for nearly two decades, winning eight sectional championships. She also coached the girls basketball team through 1979 and coached the girls track team until Hooton took over in 1991.

In 2006, Eisenhardt was inducted into the Indiana Basketball Hall of Fame. And in 2015, the Madison Consolidated High School track was named for Eisenhardt.

"She was very much part of my mentoring as far as high school sports," said Hooton, who said she also admired Eisenhardt in the way she conducted herself in the community. "She was not only important in my life, but lots of people's lives."

McClelland called Eisenhardt "a true example and forerunner of women's sports and recreation." As one of her students prior to Title IX, McClelland said, "Miss Eisenhardt offered so many opportunities for organized play outside her classroom.

After school nearly everyday was GAA." And occasionally there was "Play Day," when other schools came to Madison for girls to form teams and compete.

She also fondly remembers coaching against Eisenhardt in that 1978 girls basketball semistate.

Switzerland rocks Southwestern from the start in 67-32 victory

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Switzerland County got the balanced scoring attack it has been seeking all season and that spelled trouble for Southwestern, which was nearly powerless to stop the Pacers roll to a 67-32 win in girls basketball Thursday in Vevay.

The Pacers, who have relied on senior twin sisters Jessie and Maddie Duvall to do nearly all of their scoring, saw all 11 players in uniform score in the game with four reaching double figures.

Add to that a dominating start that saw Switzerland jump out to a 17-0 lead, and it was a good night all around for the crew from Vevay and a rough night for Southwestern.

Draft picks key Bengals' reboot, return to playoffs

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Many in Cincinnati scoffed when the Bengals passed on elite Oregon offensive tackle Penei Sewell to take Ja'Marr Chase with the fifth-overall pick in the NFL draft last spring.

Cincinnati sorely needed offensive line help, and Sewell seemed an obvious choice. Chase, like Sewell, sat out the pandemic-shortened 2020 season and was perhaps less of a sure thing.

After shaking off some rust, Chase emerged as a record-breaking star and leading candidate for Offensive Rookie of the Year while helping Cincinnati (10-7) get to the postseason for the first time since 2015.

"I still have a lot more to do," Chase said. "Hopefully I can break some playoff records."

The Bengals used the last two drafts wisely to add some critical parts and proven winners who drove this worst-to-first AFC North champion team. Taking Burrow with the first overall pick in the 2020 draft was a no-brainer. He won the Heisman Trophy and a national championship with LSU in 2019. His teammates — half joking, half not — nicknamed him "Joey Franchise."

Receiver Tee Higgins, who won a national championship at Clemson, was a 2020 second-round pick. He's logged nearly 2,000 receiving yards in his first two NFL seasons. Third-rounder Logan Wilson is the Bengals' best linebacker.

Then came Chase, reuniting him with former LSU teammate Burrow.

"Well, when we drafted (Chase), he said he was going to break all the records, and it was hard to know if that was going to be true or not," Cincinnati coach Zac Taylor said. "He's put himself in a position to do that, not just relying on his talent, but becoming a professional, really since day one and in his consistency over the course of the season."

Chase broke the team record for receiving yards in a season (Chad Johnson had 1,440 in 2007), finishing the 17-game schedule with 1,455 — just 18 yards short of the NFL rookie record held by Houston's Bill Groman (1,473 in 1960).

"Between Joe and Ja'Marr and I, our last couple first-round picks all have national championship rings," noted tackle Jonah Williams, the team's top 2019 draft pick from Alabama. "And there's a bunch of other guys on the team, too, who have been there. That feeling of being in a big game isn't as daunting as it might be for people who haven't experienced that."

Guard Jackson Carman, a 2021 second-rounder who also has a national championship ring from Clemson, was the sixth man on a much-improved O-line. Kicker Evan McPherson, a fifth-round 2021 pick out of Florida, made 85% of his field-goal attempts — including 9 of 11 from 50 yards or more — and could give Cincinnati some stability there for years to come.

Taylor said taking proven winners has paid off.

"A lot of them have playoff experience that's very specific to the culture and kind of how we want to build this team," he said. "That's not to say you're not going to take great players that played for other college teams that weren't in the playoffs, but we've got a quarterback and some other guys who have been in these types of moments before. And I think that carries over to a lot of guys who haven't been in those situations."

The Las Vegas Raiders, Cincinnati's opponent Saturday in the opening round of the playoffs, haven't been quite as lucky.

The 2020 draft was one of the worst in recent memory with Las Vegas cutting both first-rounders earlier this season. The 2021 class has been a little better even though first-round tackle Alex Leatherwood was forced to move inside to guard and has struggled there as well.

Young Hilltoppers wilt in 2nd half against Milan

BY JORDAN BEAR

Shawe looked ready to grab its second conference win of the season Thursday, when a Hilltopper collapse down the stretch allowed Milan to escape with a 45-39 win at Meny Gym in Madison.

The Hilltoppers were in control of the game and had taken a seven-point lead into the fourth quarter when turnovers caught up with Shawe and they were outscored 18-5 in the final period to give the Indians the victory.

"I am so disgusted by this performance," Shawe coach Terry King said. "I am disgusted with the effort in the second half, the focus, and just everything. They mentally were not there to play at all. Just extremely disappointed all the way around."

Shawe played fairly well in the first half, had an eight-point lead at halftime and was hitting on all cylinders. However, the turnovers began to add up in the second half — a harbinger of what would come later — while the Hilltoppers were whistled for 11 fouls to Milan's four.

Shawe ended the night with 27 turnovers overall and Milan used those miscues to comeback and take its first lead with two minutes to go in the fourth quarter. Shawe didn't score again and the Indians hit free throws to seal the outcome.

"We simply have to focus. This team struggled to focus tonight and they simply have to be focused for 32 minutes," King said. "When you aren't focused things like tonight are what happen."

Shawe's youth and inexperience also hampered it at times against the veteran Indians.

"I guess this is one of those games where it is youth that shows," King said. "The situations are just different at this level, and hopefully they're slowly learning."

Two freshmen led Shawe in scoring with Allison Knoebel collecting 17 points and Ava Turner adding 14. Milan was led in scoring by Audrey Schmidt with 15 points and Makalee Rivera with 13.

Shawe, now 7-7 overall and 1-3 Ohio River Valley Conference, hosts South Central this morning and Columbus Christian on Monday before traveling to New Washington on Tuesday.

Murray has career night to lead Iowa over Indiana 83-74

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

IOWA CITY, Iowa — On a night when his heralded twin struggled with fouls, Kris Murray came through with career highs of 29 points and 11 rebounds, leading Iowa to an 83-74 win over Indiana on Thursday night.

Murray was 12-of-18 shooting, posted his first career double-double and capped an 8-0 run with a steal and dunk for a 76-66 lead with four minutes remaining. He had 17 points in the first half, already matching his previous career best. Iowa took the lead for good with nine minutes left after Tony Perkins scored six straight points.

Keegan Murray, coming in as the nation's leading scorer at 24.7 points per game, finished with 12 points, nine rebounds and foul fouls in 22 minutes for the Hawkeyes (12-4, 2-3 Big Ten). He failed to reach 20 points for the first time in six games. Jordan Bohannon added 11 points including his 400th career 3-pointer, the 20th Division I player to reach the mark.

Trayce Jackson-Davis led the Hoosiers (12-4, 3-3) with 18 points and 11 rebounds for his 29th double-double. Race Thompson added 13 points, Parker Stewart 11 and Trey Galloway 10. The Hoosiers led 48-41 at halftime. Iowa had runs of 12-0 and 9-3 in the first half but in between Indiana went on a 20-4 run that included a pair of free throws from Miller Kopp after Iowa coach Fran McCaffery was given a technical.

Indiana outshot Iowa 51% to 44% but did poorly from the line (13 of 21) and gave up 34 points off 23 turnovers, including 15 steals.

VICTORY

"We were a little worried about having a slow start without a JV game and things getting a little out of routine. They definitely surprised me in a good way," Switzerland coach Brooke Todd said. "I think we shared the ball really well. Everybody wanted to be a piece of it. Nobody cared who had the buckets. It was fun to watch."

Because of COVID on Southwestern's side, there was no junior varsity game which meant the varsity-only contest started at 6:45 p.m. Before the clock struck 7 p.m., the game was all but over.

Switzerland (13-4, 3-0 Ohio River Valley) turned the Rebels over and scored seemingly at will during a four-minute stretch to open the game. Southwestern finally broke the run with an Emma Long basket and the Rebels outscored Switzerland 9-4 over the rest of the quarter, but the damage had been done.

Southwestern (5-15, 1-2 ORVC) pulled to within 21-9 after the first but never got the lead under double digits. The Pacers held a 37-15 lead at halftime and a 57-28 after three quarters.

It was a disappointing performance to say the least for Southwestern coach Brian Crank, especially coming off the Rebels' nice win over South Decatur on Saturday.

"Coming off a win on Saturday I thought that we would have a little bit more fire than we did," Crank said. "I know we're short-handed but once again that's just an excuse. Just because you're short doesn't mean that it should affect you. This was the worst effort we've had all year. So hopefully it's an anomaly. Hopefully they take it to heart and tomorrow when we come in and practice. That's the great thing about basketball; tomorrow's a new day."

Maddie Duvall scored 14 points on 5-of-9 shooting and had seven steals to lead Switzerland while Jessie Duvall had 12 points and five steals. Mackenzie Taylor had a career-high 12 points and pulled down six rebounds and Courtney Higgins had 11 points.

Long had seven points and eight rebounds and Ashley Fulton and Jenny Tankersley scored six points each.

Switzerland County returns to action today when it hosts New Washington. The Pacers then head to Class A No. 4 Jac-Cen-Del on Tuesday.

Southwestern has an entire week off before traveling to South Ripley next Thursday.

Hanover men dominate rival Franklin 81-57

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Hanover dominated rival Franklin in every facet of the game, rolling to an 81-57 win in men's basketball at home on Wednesday.

The Panthers shot 57% from the floor — including 63% in the second half — and outscored the Grizzlies 33-15 from the 3-point arc. Hanover also held a 33-25 advantage in rebounds.

That dominance allowed Hanover to build a 36-28 lead by halftime, then roll over Franklin 45-29 in the second half en route to the win.

Matt Munoz was 9-of-14 from the floor and scored 20 points while pulling down six rebounds to lead Hanover. Max Greenamoyer hit three 3-pointers and scored 15 points for the Panthers while Ty Houston had 14 points, including a monster slam dunk in the second half.

Ty Wright led Franklin with 19 points and nine rebounds. Carter Crowe added 14 points and Reggie McDonald had 12.

Hanover, now 10-2 overall, sits alone the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference at 6-1, one game ahead of Manchester and Anderson. The Panthers host Manchester today and then head to Transylvania on Wednesday.

David Campbell

Hanover's Noah Williams holds his follow-through on a 3-pointer as fans look on in anticipation during the Panthers' win over Franklin on Wednesday.

WOMEN HOLD OFF FRANKLIN

Hanover women's basketball hit as many free throws as Franklin attempted to hold on for a 65-59 road win on Wednesday.

The Panthers shot 10% lower from the floor than Franklin (40% to 30%), but went to the free-throw line 30 times in the game. Hanover didn't exactly burn up the net, hitting only 17 attempts, but that disparity at the line proved to be the difference.

Grace Bezold scored 18 points and had six rebounds to lead Hanover Callie Wilder and Taylor Heath came off the bench to score 11 and 10 points, respectively.

Hanover, now 6-5 overall and 3-3 HCAC, hosts Manchester today and hosts league-leading Transylvania on Wednesday.

TRIMBLE FALLS TO OWEN

Trimble County suffered a 65-35 loss to Owen County on the road on Thursday.

Hunter Kelly scored 11 points to lead Trimble while Dalton Penick had nine.

Trimble, now 5-13 overall on the season, falls to 2-4 in the North Central Kentucky Conference and 2-3 in 31st District play. The Raiders host Woodford County tonight and host Carroll County on Tuesday.

DRAFT

The Raiders' top 2020 pick, receiver Henry Ruggs III, showed promise on the field this season but was released after being charged with felonies in a DUI crash that killed a 23-year-old woman in November.

Sewell, by the way, went to the Lions as the seventh overall pick and had a solid rookie season, albeit for a bad team.

The Bengals' O-line remains a work in progress, but they couldn't be happier with their exciting young draftees.

"You got someone like Franchise back there who, when you put the ball in his hands is going to make a play, and he expects us to do the same," said tight end C.J. Uzomah, a seven-year veteran who at 28 is one of the team's senior members. "And you got somebody like Ja'Marr over there. The chemistry was already there, and now it's exploding and people are seeing just how great Ja'Marr is already. It's fun. It's a fun atmosphere, it's a fun locker room, it's a fun huddle."

"What a privilege to get to sit at opposite ends of the scorer's table and coach against my mentor," said McClelland, whose Lady Eagles advanced to the state finals before losing to champion Warsaw that year.

But with all of Eisenhardt's accomplishments in athletics, her presence at Crystal Beach was also a significant part of her impact with all the youth she taught to swim.

"She was strict" at the pool, and "a lot people didn't like that, but safety was first and you have to be when you're running a pool," Lakeman emembered.

Hooton recalled taking her daughter, Angel, to Crystal Beach to learn swimming "and wanted nothing to do with the water ... Mary Lou took her to the other side of the pool where there was nobody, and she comes back, and she's a swimmer."

"I never swim laps without thinking, 'I have this skill because of Miss Eisenhardt,' " McClelland said.

"Crystal Beach Swimming Pool was one of the sites where Miss Eisenhardt left her legacy," McClelland said. "Generations were impacted by her dedication to teaching swimming and then starting competitive swimming."

There's no doubt about Eisenhardt's legacy in girls athletics in those early years when she had the bulk of the responsibility in moving girls sports forward.

Hooton cited Eisenhardt's sacrifices — late nights, always being the last one to leave and starting up again early the next day — at a time when the girls had lesser facilities and materials to work with.

"Her influence on girls sports has been tremendous in Madison," Hooton said.

Kentucky's Tshiebwe wants 'my name to be remembered forever'

BY MARK LONG
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Already leading the nation in rebounding, Tshiebwe (SHEE-bway) set career highs in scoring in consecutive games for the 18th-ranked Wildcats (13-3, 3-1 Southeastern Conference). He had 30 points and 13 rebounds in a lopsided victory at Vanderbilt on Tuesday night, three days after finishing with 29 points and 17 boards against Georgia.

"I wouldn't say I was surprised, but sometimes we've got to take the time to appreciate what somebody really does," teammate and Keion Brooks said. "And Oscar has been tremendous for us all year and playing exceptionally well."

Tshiebwe hopes to do way more.

"I want my name to be remembered forever," he said. "Not just as a basketball player, the way I treat people, the stuff I'm bringing to Kentucky basketball. I want my name to be remembered as Oscar who was different, not just a basketball player."

SIZE: 6-foot-9, 255 pounds.

STATS: 17 points, 15.1 rebounds, 62.7% shooting, 72.5% free throws.

STRENGTHS: Tshiebwe is running the floor like never before and getting easy baskets in transition. While his hands seemed suspect early in the season, he's shown great touch around the rim in recent weeks — on both ends of the floor.

"We had a game a couple of games ago where he graded out, on his sprints, the worst he had all season," Calipari said. "So now, I'm focused on him running that floor. It puts him ahead of the action. He's going to get some easy ones. He's in a great position to rebound."

WEAKNESSES: For an athletic big man with a big body, Tshiebwe isn't much of a shot blocker. He hasn't had more than two in any game since early December and only has 23 in 466 minutes this season.

He also needs to continue to develop his post skills and extend his range.

"Remember early in the year, he couldn't make 2-footers?" Calipari said. "Now, he's hitting jumpers and making free throws."

DRAFT PROJECTION: Once considered a second-round project, Tshiebwe is climbing draft boards and could end up being a mid-first-rounder by the time the draft arrives in July.

ALSO WORTH WATCHING

F JABARI SMITH, AUBURN: The 6-10 freshman from Fayetteville, Georgia, could be the No. 1 pick in the 2022 NBA draft if he decides to turn pro. Smith scored a season-high 25 points in a victory over No. 24 Alabama on Tuesday. He also had seven rebounds, four blocked shots and two steals. He can shoot, dribble and play defense.

G JADEN SHACKELFORD, ALABAMA: The smooth-shooting left-hander leads the league in 3-pointers made (51) and attempted (133). The 6-3 junior is averaging 16.1 points — tied for sixth in the league — and 5.9 rebounds a game.

G KENNEDY CHANDLER, TENNESSEE: The 6-1 freshman from Memphis, Tennessee, ranks fifth in the SEC with 71 assists to go along with 13.4 point a game. He's an efficient ball handler, making smart decisions in pick-and-roll situations, and has the speed and shooting range to be a dynamic point guard in the NBA.

Smith, Van Lith rally Louisville women past Syracuse

BY GARY B. GRAVES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — With every possession looming large, Kianna Smith and Hailey Van Lith calmly seized the chances that No. 3 Louisville needed them to against Syracuse.

Smith and Van Lith each scored 20 points, with Van Lith making a couple of clutch baskets to spark a critical 9-0 run in the final minutes and help the Cardinals escape Syracuse 84-71 on Thursday night.

The determined Orange rallied to tie the game at 62 early in the fourth quarter before Smith and Van Lith delivered consecutive 3s to give the Cardinals (14-1, 4-0 Atlantic Coast Conference) a 68-64 edge. Van Lith made another basket before Olivia Cochran followed with a three-point play to make it 73-66 with 3 minutes remaining. Van Lith added a jumper and Emily Engstler two free throws for a 77-66 cushion, Mykasa Robinson added a layup and Engstler closed with the game's final five points to cap Louisville's 14th consecutive victory.

It just took the Cardinals' veterans to set the example.

"Personally, it's confidence," said Smith, who opened the fourth for Louisville with two 3s as the Cardinals made all four from long range in the quarter. "We put in a lot of work, so those shots are shots we practice every day. Shooting them is just normal, it's not high-pressure situations."

Christianna Carr had 19 points and Chrislyn Carr 17 for Syracuse (8-8, 1-5), which shot 48% but dropped its fourth in a row.

Smith made 4 of 7 3-pointers and 8 of 12 shots overall, while Van Lith was 9 of 16 and 2 of 6 from deep. Louisville finished 34 of 66 from the field, with every basket needed to put away Syracuse. Engstler had 15 points and eight rebounds against her former team, while Cochran had 13 points and seven boards.

Louisville's offensive success was somewhat surprising coming off a COVID pause that postponed Sunday's game at Miami and limited practice for players and staff, including head coach Jeff Walz. The Cardinals' defensive struggles at times were just as startling, though the Orange entered as one of the ACC's most efficient squads on both ends and showed that throughout a close contest.

"They're a unique team because they do a lot of five-out, one-on-one action, and we're a very scout-oriented team that likes to be prepared," Van Lith said. "On top of Covid and girls coming back at different times and not being set because of the offense they run, it was a tough scout for us."

Syracuse struggled down the stretch, making just 4 of its final 11 shots after tying the game. The Orange also committed 20 turnovers leading to 24 Louisville points, including a couple of giveaways the Cardinals turned into five points during their run.

"We were right there, down three with a few minutes to go, they just closed a little bit better than us," Syracuse acting head coach Vonn Read said. "We shot the ball really well and gave ourselves a chance. ... They fought for 40 minutes. That's all I could ask from them."

Colts' GM hopes to address late collapse in offseason

INDIANAPOLIS — Chris Ballard still struggles to explain the Indianapolis Colts' late-season collapse.

He seems equally confounded by Indy's 2-5 record in one-score games in 2021.

Five days after the Colts were eliminated from the playoffs with an embarrassing loss at Jacksonville, Indy's general manager was searching for answers.

"You have to finish with a better record in one-score games," Ballard said Thursday. "Ultimately, it falls on my shoulders and we're going to go to work and ask some very tough questions over the next month, month and a half to fix it."

What action Ballard might take remains unclear.

Ballard declined to discuss specific personnel moves or potential coaching changes during his traditional season-ending news conference. Yet he understands finding solutions is the key to the offseason.

Indy started the year by losing its first three games and closed it out with two straight losses when a win in either game would have clinched a playoff berth. The Colts finished 9-8.

That wasn't good enough for team owner Jim Irsay, who sent a letter to fans on Wednesday in which he described the Jacksonville loss as "perhaps the worst way possible" to end a season.

"The buck stops with me and this experience makes me even more determined to bring Indiana a contending team," Irsay wrote. "We are already working toward the future, and I'm going to do whatever it takes to put us in a position to win next year and for years to come."

It appeared Indy was already there this season after putting together one of the league's most proficient rushing offenses, an offensive line with two Pro Bowlers and a defense that allowed the ninth-fewest points while producing the second-most takeaways with 33.

On paper, that's a team that could reach the Super Bowl.

The problem: Indy also finished 25th in sacks with 33, and the passing game was inconsistent behind first-year quarterback Carson Wentz.

Although Ballard acknowledged both areas need to be better next fall, there is renewed hope.

Despite missing most of training camp, another week of practice leading into the season opener because of COVID-19 and playing through two sprained ankles, Wentz revived his career by throwing 27 touchdown passes with seven interceptions. It was a dramatic improvement over his disastrous final season in Philadelphia.

And when Frank Reich begins his fifth season as the Colts' coach, it will likely mark the the first time he's working with same starting quarterback for a second consecutive year.

"(It takes time) to learn the offense, to really understand the nuances of it, the timing and the rhythm of the throws, working through progressions — we've had none of that," Reich said Monday, explaining the benefit of offseason workouts. "I would love to get to the point where we can have a normal offseason and that we're able to find a way to get players in the building to work in our schemes and get better."

Ballard said he hopes to improve the receiving corps, the pass rush and Indy's overall depth, even as he waits for four-time Pro Bowl receiver T.Y. Hilton and two-time Pro Bowl tight end Jack Doyle to decide whether they'll return next season or retire. He also must decide whether to bring back left tackle Eric Fisher after an inconsistent, injury-filled first season in Indy.

But Ballard also believes a modified approach could help Wentz — and the Colts — take another big step.

"I talked to Carson about this (Wednesday) and said let's make the layups," Ballard said. "The throw against Arizona was incredible, there might be two or three other guys in the league who can make that throw. But let's make the layups. Sometimes when you carry that burden, that you have to make a big play all the time, let the team help you."

Yanks' Balkovec becomes 1st woman to manage MLB farm team

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Rachel Balkovec became the first woman hired to manage a minor league affiliate of a Major League Baseball team when she was promoted Tuesday by the New York Yankees to dugout boss of the Low A Tampa Tarpons.

The 34-year-old joined the Yankees organization as a hitting coach in 2019, making her the first woman with that job full-time in affiliated baseball. She got her first position in pro ball with the St. Louis Cardinals as a minor league strength and conditioning coach in 2012.

Balkovec, a former softball catcher at Creighton and New Mexico, moved from the Cardinals to the Houston Astros in 2016. She was hired as the Latin American strength and conditioning coordinator, a position for which she learned Spanish, and later became the strength and conditioning coach at Double-A Corpus Christi.

She briefly left baseball in 2018 to pursue a second master's degree at Vrije University in the Netherlands, where she also worked with the country's national baseball and softball teams. She then worked for Driveline Baseball, a data-driven center that has trained numerous major leaguers, before being hired by New York.

"I view my path as an advantage," she told The Associated Press in 2019. "I had to do probably much more than maybe a male counterpart, but I like that because I'm so much more prepared for the challenges that I might encounter."

Beacom becomes 1st female pitcher for an Australian pro team

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MELBOURNE, Australia — Genevieve Beacom has made history as the first female pitcher for an Australian professional baseball team.

The 17-year-old Beacom appeared in the three-game Melbourne Challenge Series, which was organized after the 2021-22 Australian Baseball League was canceled because of COVID-19.

Beacom signed for the Melbourne Aces earlier this month as a development player. She appeared in Saturday's game against the Adelaide Giants and allowed no runs and no hits in her one-inning appearance in a game which the Aces trailed and lost 7-1.

"When I got out there I just wanted to shut down the runs. They had some momentum so the goal was just to stop the run-scoring," the left-handed Beacom said.

Beacom's historic evening continued a ground-breaking career which includes being the first woman to pitch in a Victorian (state) Summer League division one game and representing Victoria and Australia at youth levels.

Beacom praised her family and coaches for supporting her ambition, including current Aces coach and former Major League Baseball pitcher Pete Moylan, as she pursues a dream of playing baseball at college level in the United States.

"If anyone tries to push you to do something you don't want to do, push you to softball or play sport that you 'should be playing', don't listen," Beacom said. "Do what you want to do and just know that if you work hard enough you can definitely make it somewhere, it's not impossible. It can be done."
